ICDE plays an important role in facilitating knowledge exchange and sharing of good practices to achieve quality online, open and flexible education. Lack of resources and lack of understanding of the concept of online, open and flexible education is observed in some parts of the world as a major threat to scalable quality education both on institutional and national levels, and is therefore also a threat to achieve the sustainable development goal for Education, SDG 4: “To ensure inclusive and equitable quality education and promote lifelong learning opportunities for all”. Consistent focus on quality enhancement, including quality assurance and accreditation, have become more important than ever and are top priority issues for ICDE as the leading global membership organization for online, open and flexible education. Through a distributed network of Focal Points on quality, ICDE has been able to capture recent good practices, but also to identify challenges in the quality work related to our field in various regions of the world.
